Dear Harold:
A short note to bring Mou up to date.
The enclosed clips from tho Chronicle all are extras, so don't return.

Jenifer now is well into her second weok of raciation therapy and is respondino well. Each तay we both think she looks and feels better. So aoes her 17. She's eatinc well. Mch less mausea.
aadiation itself is of course mainless, but the positions she has to ret into under the linear accelmrator involve mascles and joint,s she has had to avoid using for more than two months. The first week was rupren indeed, but herinnino with the two-day weekend lull she showe? marker improvement and it has continued into the second week With each day's session involvinc less pain than before.

I continue to spend as much time as possible with fer, convoying her to and from the once-teriple sessions under the accelerator. I ret a tw from the cafeteria and usually eat lunch andfor dinner with her, then get her ready for the night etc. These things and the colostomy I can help her with as the murses can't, althouch arain the entire staff aladly stands on its head to do anything whatever that, she needs or wants, arranping special thines, spending many of their breaks just talking with her. Inis includes several from the floor where she was last year who have found out she's back. She draws them both as a patient aad as a person, and their devotion is so constant and unfailing that she remarked the other day it's like livino in a cocoon of love. All this belps irmensely; particularly does it help a shy and sensitive person like jenifer. or all tok its fine nersonnel, the hospital is chaotic at times, parficularly in the mornines when she's trying to get rreakfast and lunch out of the way in time for the $1: 15$ radiaton sessionx and otherwise collect herself for what she knows is ahead. I may have mentioned last year that the Whole thino reminns me of a Chinese street scene, wjth chaos the rule until the last minute when a miraculous resolution takes place and thinoc fall into place mix whixaxter without dispster occurine.
ve both appreciate your 4/9/77 remarks.
And send our best.
