

Dear Mr. Stone,

6/3/91

As you can see from the enclosed, as soon as I learned that you were taking further liberties with truth I wrote you but did not decide to mail it. Thereafter, when I learned more about what you had said and I done I added to it.

You did not respond when I wrote you February 10. I did not decide to send what I'd written you.

Now that the Post has aired your complaints and published its response, knowing ~~that Time~~ that Time is to have a story in the current issue and having heard of other media interests, here it is.

You may not believe it but I do regret very much that having earned appropriate and not inconsiderable honors for your fine work of the past you elected to and persisted in besmitching it and your reputation with what I regard as a trashy obscenity in which you trivialize and commercialize the most awful and subversive crime of the JFK assassination.

With sincere regrets,

Harold Weisberg
